BPW Asks State OK On Water Rationing Power

Pretty Local Girls Are Abbot Graduates

Will Enforce Restrictions On Water Uses

The Board of Public Works will ask the state for power to ration the use of water here.

Despite frequent rainfall during the past few weeks, the Haggett's Pond reservoir is still 30 inches below normal.

"Only a six inch rainfall will help it much", Engineer Ralph Preble Jr. has warned.

At its meeting Monday night, the BPW decided to ask the State Department of Public Health for permission to enforce restrictions - a formality required by state law.

But that department's permission is already assured. Preble reported that a written request, stating that an emergency exists,

Jr. High Jitters Curbed By Practice Sessions

Who's got the Junior High jitters?

The sixth-graders of course!

At least, they DID have them.

Yesterday's "orientation day" at Junior High School for all of the sixth grades throughout Andover may have cleared up many questions and confusions that have been gathering in their young minds as the close of school grows nearer and nearer.

Junior High's principal, Benjamin Dimlich, ordered the assemblage at 9:30 yesterday morning in Memorial Hall Auditorium after several earlier "planning" meetings with the teachers in the four elementary schools.

The day was well chosen, for yesterday was Field Day for the present Junior High grades and the halls and classrooms were nicely cleared for the sixth-graders.

Mr. Dimlich addressed the girls and boys briefly in the auditorium, giving them a general outline of the fall program and assigning them to their homerooms. They met their homeroom teachers, the guidance counselors, the school nurse and were generally made acquainted with the school's geography. It is planned to repeat the orientation during the first week in September to "refresh" vacation-laggard memories and to pick up those children moving into Andover for seventh grade during the summer, as well as those who were absent yesterday for illness or any other reason.

What About West School? Will West School's double-sessions of the first and second terms be ready for the big jump to Junior High?

According to Miss Isabelle Dobbie, principal of West School, this is no longer a question. It is a surety. With the splitting of a 41 pupil sixth grade last January into two sixth grades with a teacher for each, West Elementary School, which had stuck to the hard and fast business of concentrating on skill subjects during those trying double-session months, gradually relaxed into a more normal framework of sixth grade curriculum its third and fourth terms. Because of the accelerated pace the classes had maintained the forepart of the year, however, a slightly higher pace was achieved the latter half as a result.

The "skill" subjects include the language arts which is reading, spelling and language usage; arithmetic, which takes in fundamentals and the ability to use facts in solving problems; and social studies, which is the study of geography and history.

Miss Dobbie's statement is quoted as follows: "Because of the concentrated efforts of the children and teachers last fall, the children at each grade level will have completed a year's work by the end of the school year."

During the period of double sessions the children in the upper grades had homework each night and the sixth grade children have had written homework twice a week during the remainder of the year.

"There are some children who do not accomplish a year's work and it is necessary for them to repeat a grade, but this is an individual problem relating to the individual child and his ability and is not a result of being on double sessions."

"At each grade level there are many degrees of ability and achievement in all subjects; however, the children from the West Elementary School who will enter the Junior High School in September should encounter no more difficulties than those children from the rest of the town who were not on double sessions."

Wins Big Art Scholarship

JUSTIN R. CURRY

The School of the Museum of Fine Arts will honor Justin R. Curry tomorrow.

Announcement will be made officially that Curry, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Justin R. Curry Sr., 96 Chestnut st., has won the Paige travelling scholarship. Carrying with it some $3800, the scholarship allows two years of study in the field of painting in several European countries.

Curry will start the scholarship a year from this month, after completing work for his Bachelor of Fine Arts degree at Tufts University. The School at the Museum is affiliated with Tufts.

Curry started his art career under the instruction of Miss Frances Dalton at Punchard High School. While there he won several gold keys in the National Scholastic Art Exhibitions. Now in his fifth year at the Museum School, he won, in 1955, a fellowship to study at the Yale Summer School of Art in Norfolk, Conn. He will attend Yale, following his two years of scholarship study abroad, in preparation for his Master of Fine Arts degree.

In his senior year at Punchard, Curry won the November Club art award. Some of his work this year has been chosen for display at the Boston Arts Festival.

SEEK POWER TO RATION WATER

will bring swift action from Boston. Believing that a local board knows its own conditions best, the state department will go along with whatever is needed, in local opinion.

Rationing, by restricting outdoor sprinkling, has been in effect here since this spring's severe dry spell. But it has been voluntary.

Remaining in effect will be a ban on lawn and garden watering, except at stated intervals. These are Tuesdays on the east side of Main st. and Fridays on the west side.

Preble told the Board Monday that most residents have cooperated in the town's efforts to save water. A few have, however, continued to sprinkle their lawns and water their gardens whenever they pleased.

When the state gives its approval to the restrictions, the town may enforce its regulations by turning off the water or taking other adequate steps to insure compliance.

Many residents actually may have thought the ban on sprinkling had been lifted, following several days of heavy rain.

Holding It's Own

But what was good for the lawns and flower gardens hasn't been much help to the water supply.

Preble explained that the pond level is just about holding its own — dropping slightly in days of excessive demand and gaining a little when it rains. But the additional rain water isn't anywhere near enough to restore the level of the pond. "It just doesn't go down at as fast a rate," Preble said.

Somewhere between two and three million gallons are being consumed each day, Preble stated.

During the dry spell some weeks ago, up to four million gallons were pumped in one day but that figure hasn't been repeated since the normal spring rainy season arrived.

However, officials expect the consumption to increase as it normally does in summer months. Present restrictions, being reinforced by state approval, are designed to prevent more serious depletion of the supply.

Also under consideration is a curtailment of the water supply to the pond in the Phillips Academy sanctuary, which is normally kept full so that it overflows the dam.

Preble said it had been shut down several years ago during a dry spell, without too many complaints from residents in the area. Some Board members wondered if a bad condition would be created by shutting off the water — with mud flats coming into existence as a good breeding ground for mosquitos.

The Board will look at the area next Monday night.

Study Continues

Meanwhile, the water source

P. Roger Christy, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Christy of Boston rd., pauses by the side of a familiar North African beast of burden — the camel. Roger is serving at a small No. African Air Base, with the rank of Airman 3/c. On foreign duty since December, he has been in the Air Force for 12 months. He attended Punchard High School and was a member of the Golf team.

study continues, with test wells being driven in many locations in an effort to find several wells that produce an adequate auxiliary supply. Not until these are located, after thorough testing, perhaps throughout the summer months, can town officials feel that the supply problem is licked.

Service Limitations

The allied problem of limiting builders on the number of water services they may install also faced the BPW Monday.

Chairman Allan Flye called attention to the Board's decision to restrict sub-division developers to half the lots shown on their plans, while builders along the accepted streets are not being restricted at all.

A plan for an extensive development was presented to the Board — for some 51 lots on Alderbrook rd.

J. Leathers showed the Board a plan that would have a water main connection on Sunset Rock rd. Some 46 acres of land, for which there is presently no detailed plan, presumably will be developed in that section also, Mr. Leathers said.

He asked permission to install water main for about 235 feet on Sunset Rock rd. to Alderbrook and along that road for better than 700 feet. The work would be done at his own expense, under BPW regulations.

After some debate, it was decided that if the work is done, six inch pipe may be used on Sunset Rock rd. but eight inch must be installed on Alderbrook rd. The Board will look into the request further and members said they may decide the matter next Monday.

Mr. Leathers said he wishes to start the project, including building a road, immediately. He explained that he intends to complete the water installation and road work before offering any lots for sale or building any homes.

Later in the meeting, Secretary Alex Henderson suggested banning all water services — but approving plans as they come, with the first approved getting first chance at services when more water is available.

Also up for discussion during the meeting was the possibility of putting a bulldozer into the pond and pushing up some of the pond and pushing up some of the pond, where some runoff occasionally pesters neighbors. It was decided to wait until late summer, when the lowest water level is expected.

Hospital Receives $6500 From Show

Between $6,000 and $6,500, representing the proceeds from the recent highly-successful Follies of '57, will be turned over to the Lawrence General Hospital in the very near future by the sponsoring Greater Lawrence Hospital Aid Society.

While the auditors have yet to complete their figures, this approximate sum was made known to members at its meeting recently, presided over by Mrs. Roland H. Sherman, 66 Central st., president.

It is expected that much needed hospital equipment will be purchased with the money, $3000 of which is known to be going to new beds and over-bed tables for Sargent.

Members have voted to offer two full scholarships of $250 each to the School of Nursing, plus a $50 prize to the student who shows the greatest improvement during her three-year course.

A very impressive summary of the year's activities was given by Mrs. Sherman, which showed a tremendously active volunteer service. Mrs. William McKeown of Andover is Director of Volunteers and reported that 21,000 hours of service were offered by 400 workers. Their activities include messenger escort service, Hospitality Shop, receptionist, folding of linens, etc. There is always a place in the volunteer program for additional workers, said Mrs. McKeown, and an invitation is extended to anyone who feels she would like to volunteer and can spare the time.

Among the year's projects, besides the Follies, was the production, Nov 3, in Punchard High School of Johann Strauss' "Die Fliedermaus" by Grace Church Light Opera Company.

The Society has also just completed a series of three health lectures in conjunction with the Y. W. C. A., and Sunday, May 26, gave the last of a series of three teas to student nurses.

The "tea" on Sunday was in the form of a picnic at Hadley's Beach, Corbett's Pond, at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Rogers of Methuen.

MALCOLM E. WINDHAM JR.

The funeral of Malcolm E. Windham Jr., 720 Robison Courts, Texarkana, Texas, a native of Andover, who died Wednesday, May 29, in St. Edwards Hospital, Fort Smith, Ark., as a result of burns, was held Friday, May 31, in Texarkana.

Mr. Windham, who was just 22 years of age, was severely burned in an accident over three months ago while visiting in Fort Smith, Ark., and had since been on the danger list at the hospital.

According to word received here in town by relatives, gasoline with which he was cleaning parts of his motorcycle in a garage caught fire in an unknown manner. Returning to the garage after running out for help, he slipped into a pan of flaming gasoline and was burned from the waist down before snuffing out the flames by rolling on the ground.

He was born in Andover April 26, 1935, son of Mrs. Margaret (Keith) Windham and the late Malcolm E. Windham. He moved to Texas with his parents in 1944.

Besides his mother, he leaves three sisters, Mary, Jean, and Carol Ann, and four brothers, James, William, Roland and Ronald.

KOOMRUAN - VARTANIAN

At a lovely candlelight ceremony in West Parish Congregational Church Saturday, June 1, at 4 o'clock, Miss Sylvia Ruth Vartanian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vartanian, Salem Depot, N.H., became the bride of the Rev. Charles Koomruian, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Koomruian of New York City.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional wedding gown of white peau de faulle, fashioned with a sculptured decolletage and a fitted long torso bodice of imported chantilly lace. Her Cathedral veil of imported silk illusion fell from a jewel-encrusted crown, and she carried a white Bible covered with white cymbidium orchids and white cymbidium orchids covered with Lily of the Valley and bridal ivy.

Cooperation Is Best Way

We hope the parking problem in Shawsheen is straightened out when the Raytheon Manufacturing Company's new parking lot is completed.

Residents of the area certainly have a justified complaint when cars park in front of their driveways and otherwise create a nuisance. But we would hate to see a town vs Raytheon debate that resulted in such hard feelings that the two could not get along peacefully together in the future.

We must remember that Raytheon, in taking over the Shawsheen Mills, will add greatly to the community through additional taxes and through payroll dollars spent here.

It would be unwise to antagonize the firm to the point where it would restrict its growth here to a minimum — for that would obviously cut down the volume of payroll dollars if not the taxes.

It seems certain that wise police regulations on parking in the affected area, following completion of the parking area, can solve the problem. But it will take cooperation of all — Raytheon and the residents. Bickering will get nowhere.

Water Restrictions

We agree with the BPW members who, Monday night, commented that it is unfair to restrict developers in the number of water services that can be installed, while allowing builders on street frontages to install as many as they wish.

The subject came up briefly when building permits were approved for four West Andover homes, under construction by the same builder.

The BPW has been restricting all developers, where a sub-division is involved, to half the lots in the development during the next 18 months. Thus, in some cases, a man with eight lots is restricted to building on four of them in a year and a half.

However, under the present system, a builder can put up many more houses, all along accepted ways, and not be restricted. Whether the BPW has a right to restrict building on accepted streets we don't know — but it is obviously unfair to put restrictions on only some of the builders while others are allowed to continue at a fast pace.

New Bridge Needed

The Board of Public Works agreed Monday night to ask the Finance Committee if it considers the Ballardvale bridge to be an emergency.

That's good judgement.

For the bridge, old and out of date, is being used daily by trucks that are far above the posted limit of four tons. Some day, and perhaps soon, a truck is going to go through the bridge — then the town will wish it had constructed the new one requested several years ago.

To forestall such an eventuality, we believe a new bridge should be built as speedily as possible. It may take months to get the steel, so a start should be made now, by asking the FinCom to approve a transfer of funds.

We hope the members of the Finance Committee will see this project as requiring immediate action before someone is badly hurt and the bridge becomes useless.

What Our Readers Say—

THE BIG SWITCH

To the Editor of the Townsman: "Your story on the plan for centralized town purchasing raises questions which you don't answer. The most urgent of these questions is 'Why?'"

"Why should town officials steeped in iron-curtain traditions suddenly leap the walls of departmental thinking and begin thinking of the welfare of the town as a whole? So drastic a departure from traditional and therefore untouchable Andover practices clearly cries for an explanation. Where are we to look for an explanation of this sudden shift in party line?"

"Seems like there was a little difference of opinion in town last winter over making a change in our political setup."

"Opposing that change was a well-heeled group of citizens who, as Crusaders for things as they are, Upholders of Traditional Practices of the Past, Defenders of the Status Quo and Viewers of Political Change as an Evil Thing, fought a vigorous Battle of Words."

"If memory serves me right, they fought and won a second engagement — the Battle of the Ballots."

"Why then, this sudden about-face? Why this revolutionary switch from the avowed virtues of traditional Andover? Such lack of reverence for customs described to us as almost sacred is close of shocking. Are these Guardians of our Heritage embracing the devil? True it is they now espouse the very evil they so recently denounced so much."

"Could the explanation be, Mr. Editor, that having won a battle or two, they are now afraid of losing the war?"

100 Year Old Wedding Dress Recalls Troth Of 3 Generations

Orange blossoms . . . pure silk illusion . . . bouffant skirts . . . satins and silks. Bridal gowns, of course. But there's a century apart between today's wedding dress and the one pictured here worn by Hepzibah at the Amos H. Blanchard Historical Society house on Main st.

While Hepzibah's anatomy is a combination of a dress-maker's old fashioned wire form, a spice box and a waxen head, the three brides who wore the dress for their sacred marriage vows were very real Andover women with several things in common, among which must have been (from measurement of the waistband) "wasp" waistlines.

All were South Church members, all were married at home and were, in direct blood line, Lucy Holt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John V. Holt, bride of Charles C. Blunt, November 27, 1857; their daughter, Lucy Blunt, bride of James Jewett Abbott June 22, 1882; and her daughter, Elizabeth Abbott, bride of J. Everett Collins October 16, 1920.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins, 35 Summer st., well known and highly respected Andover residents, are parents of four sons — no daughters. Thus the line is broken and the gown is now one of a collection of bridal gowns given to the Andover Historical Society. Through the courtesy and aid of its curator, Mrs. Theodore Dodge and permission of Mrs. Collins it photographed for and TOWNSMAN.

Designed in two pieces of silk taffeta in white, with dark pin stripes, the short jacket terminates in a "V". The skirt has deep fullness back and was underkirted. It is presumed, by the three brides in her generation, adding a faint "swish" to short steps in the processions. Touches of ported lace fall from the border a square neck. The brides carried the Irish linen handkerchiefs bordered in lace.

Mrs. Collins, whose spent 68 years together, the Abbott's 50th wedding sary in the old 1685 Andover house on Andover st. Abbott was the one among them and, as the homestead had been with laurel from the Shattrel Lane Farm on local the wedding, branches from the Amos Blanchard have been added by Mrs. Collins to the background picture.

GOURMET
"STEALS"BY
BETTY BLAISDELL

It is hard to believe — even for myself to believe — that in all my growing-up years I never ate a hamburger. They simply weren't around to eat . . . not a home, or school or anywhere I went to eat that I can remember. Just when this so-called "classic" came into being is a mystery to me, but I'm sure it's here to stay — and my own brood couldn't do a better promotion job on them than if they were paid to do it!

Pepperidge Farm, I see, has at last succumbed to the hamburger influence and has joined the ranks along with the other bun bakers. This, I'm afraid, doesn't change things appreciably with me. The one compromise I might make, though, is just a half a bun — the bottom half — toasted under the broiler and used as a bed for a

HAMBURGER DE LUXE

1 lb. ground round steak
3/4 cup crumbs from French loaf bread
1 egg
1/2 tsp. Monosodium Glutamate
1/4 tsp. Beau Monde Seasoning (Spice Island)
1/8 tsp. freshly milled pepper
1 chopped shallot
parsley flakes
1/2 cup light cream

Pour light cream over crumbs to moisten, add seasonings, and mix well. Stir in ground meat so that all is blended, then add egg. Shape into patties. Before grilling, fry out some crisp bacon slices, drain on paper and pour off excess bacon fat. Now the pan is ready for your patties. Add a bacon slice across top of each patty when serving. Very quick and very good — not at all in the class of the greasy burger on a cold bun with oozed-over ketchup!

BETTY ANNS

(Mrs. Leverett N. Putnam)

Two fine cookie recipes were begged from Mrs. Putnam this week with the hope that some of you June shower-givers might like them on the refreshment table. They're familiar to many West Parishioners and deserve a preference rating in the best of cookie files. "Betty Anns" are better known as "white brownies."

1/2 cup butter
1 cup white sugar
2 eggs yolks, 1 egg white (save the other till later)
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. Baking Powder
1 1/2 cup all purpose flour
1/2 tsp vanilla

Cream the butter and sugar, add the 2 eggs yolks and one white which has been beaten, then the vanilla. Sift dry ingredients together and add. Batter will be stiff so you will have to spread it out in a 10x10 inch buttered pan with a bit of patting down. Now for the "frosting" . . .

1 egg white, beaten (the one you put aside)
1 cup lt. brown sugar
1 cup chopped walnut meats
1/2 tsp. vanilla

Mix together, dab it on to the batter with a spoon, and bake in a 275 degree oven for 20-30 min. Mark it and let cool in the tin.

Summer Fun For Young People
Beginning on June 14 and continuing until Sept. 13, there will be something interesting for young people all summer in the Memorial Hall Library. This year the summer reading group, already named the "Bookworms" will go traveling, by way of books, which are to be tickets. A library card is the passport, and the librarians in the Children's room are to be the travel agents. Boys and girls in grades 1 through 6 will have small suitcases on which to record their readings. Junior High readers will have a handsome wallet, in which to keep a record of the countries they visit by way of their reading. Travel booklists have been prepared for all grades and the librarians, as travel agents, may be able to suggest many more titles. Travel books include such places as the bottom of the sea, the moon, countries here and abroad, animals and life of other countries, minerals, trees, etc.

Plans For Puppeteers

Any would-be puppeteers who enjoy having group meetings in the summer are invited to the library on the days of the first meeting of two groups - one, June 17, 10:15 a.m. and the second August at the same hour. At that time groups will settle days on which they want to meet; both groups will be limited in number, so interested boys and girls should sign up with the librarian as soon as possible. A new type of puppet work will be done this summer - shadow puppets, in which action is carried on behind a screen, before a bright light.

179th Commencement At Phillips Academy

Phillips Academy celebrates its 179th Commencement, combined with alumni reunions, this week Thursday through Sunday. The main event today is the annual Senior Dinner given to the Senior Class by the Andover Alumni Council. The main speaker at this dinner will be Thomas G. Dignan, father of a senior and president of the Boston Edison Company.

Some 1,500 alumni and parents will start arriving on Friday and will take part in an informal afternoon and evening program on that day.

Following the Andover Alumni Council meeting on Saturday morning, the feature event will be an Alumni Forum, entitled, "Who should go to Andover?" This question will be discussed by a panel including Robert W. Sides, Director of Admissions of Phillips Academy; Frederick S. Allis Jr., Chairman of the Andover Scholarship Committee; Amory H. Bradford '30, vice president, New York; John U. Munro '30, Director of Financial Aid, Harvard University; David A. Dudley '28, Associate Director of Admissions at M.I.T. and Donald H. McLean Jr. '28 (panel chairman) attorney, New York City. Like many other schools and colleges, Andover is under increasingly severe pressure for admission with the number of applicants having increased by 25 percent in each of the past four years. For the forthcoming year some 1,500 applications were received for approximately 250 vacancies. The Andover admissions policy has been the subject of a continuing study by a special Faculty Committee and also by the Alumni Council Committee on Admissions and Scholarships under the chairmanship of Mr. McLean.

Following the alumni forum on Saturday will be the annual Alumni Luncheon. Speakers will include Edward A. Robie '37, retiring President of the Alumni Council; toastmaster Oliver Jensen '32, Managing Editor of American Heritage; and Stephen M. Rossen '57, chosen by the graduating class to speak for that class. The main talk will be delivered by Headmaster John M. Kemper. Other events of the day include a baseball game between the Andover varsity and an all-star alumni team; a dramatic production "Ten Little Indians" produced by the student Drama Workshop group and a round of 12 different alumni dinners.

The program on Sunday is given over to the graduation of Andover's 178th senior class. Over two hundred seniors will receive diplomas from Headmaster John M. Kemper. The final event of the weekend will be a reception by Headmaster and Mrs. Kemper at their home for all guests of the school.

School Classes Held Observances
